Shahad.. a doctors dream

Ever since she was a little girl Shahad dreamed of becoming an eye doctor (ophthalmologist). When she was still at school the war began in Syria, bringing with it the most terrifying images of destruction and killing.

Shahad did not give up her dream and would go to school everyday in Idlib with the sounds of bombing and airplanes flying above in the air, which worried her parents a lot. This worry turned into a reality when the war reached Idlib, and Shahad and her family were now living in a war zone. Because of the frequent bombing Shahad and many students could no longer go to school and were deprived of an education. Her school was bombed and this little girl could not shake away the feeling of sadness.

Shahad and her family left Idlib and headed to Turkey. They did not want to go to far from their city in hopes of returning one day; this is what caused them to settle in Reyhanli, which is close to the Syrian border. Shahads father was worried that she would leave her dream behind.

Once they arrived in Reyhanli, Shahad was enrolled in Jeel School (a WATAN School). She says, "School makes me happy. As soon as we got to Reyhanli my dad enrolled me in Jeel School and now I'm really happy".

What makes Shahad even happier is that she lives near her school. She expressed this saying, "They best thing is that I can see my school from my home, I feel it's next to me all the time. My dream is going to begin in this school and I'm going to keep studying until I become a doctor and go back to idlib. I'm really happy with my teachers and everyone is encouraging me". Shahad completed her first year at Jeel school with flying colours and excellence, which was a result of her obvious ambition. The school principle Mr. Ibrahim says:

“Shahad is a student I won’t forget. She has never been late for school, none of the teachers or students have any complaints about her and I hope every student would be as motivated and persistent as Shahad”.

Jeel School in Reyhanli includes more than 500 male and female students and is one of WATAN’s schools, plus another 8 schools in Syria. The schools have qualified and specialised staff and offer psychological support services and carry out many educational support activities.

projects

WATAN is very active in the water and sanitation sector through many projects and activities in a number of Syrian cities as well as refugee camps along the border.

The projects established in this area provide long terms services aimed at targeted communities. These include supplying water, waste disposal and sanitation services.

01 | Emergency baskets

Khayr distributed emergency baskets to a large group of people newly displaced individuals that had been registered. They were able to distribute 1,950 baskets.

03 | Supplying water

Khayr works on supplying water on a daily basis so that each person is supplied with 35 litres a day of clean drinking water. In this way they are receiving clean drinking water. The water is sterilized with chlorine and tested, and then it is ready to be poured into water tanks, which are placed in camps and communities.

05 | Water and sanitation services

WATAN completed its extended sewer pipeline project (Areeha, Binish) as part of its project to eliminate the source of leishmaniasis in the Idlib countryside. This project was started a month ago after researching the reasons for the spread of this disease, which was found to be due to the open sewage system running through these villages. WATAN is working on extending this sewage pipeline to run through all the affected villages, and is 9 km long covering 155,500 beneficiaries.

Since it was established, WATAN has worked within the shelter sector on many projects that aim to improve the feeling of safety and privacy of beneficiaries, as well as to help lessen the effects of the environment by providing shelter with high global standards.

Renovating homes

The aim of the project was to renovate damaged homes with each home renovation costing between $500- 750. This project will be implemented in 2 ways. The first: after assessing and recording the damage and work needed the owner will carry out the maintenance work himself. He will be given 40% of the cost and once the work is completed and checked he will receive the rest.

The second: The work will be supervised entirely by the team, engineers supervising the project. The registration of homes process in several areas has begun, with high humanitarian and technical standards. There are over 670 registered homes and at the end of September the engineering team which consists of 3 engineers and 4 volunteers, began preparing and estimating the value of the damage. So far 49 homes have been prepared for maintenance in Kafr Roma.

3 projects

The Food security and livelihood sectors are the main sectors that WATAN works on through Khayr. The need is no longer limited to food but on how to provide food and support the methods that contribute to food security and basic needs for beneficiaries. WATAN is very keen on supporting the agricultural and livestock sectors since they are the main ways to guarantee food security in Syria through several livelihood projects.

01 | Distribution of electronic coupons to Syrian refugees in Turkey

Khayr distributed electronic coupons to Syrian refugees living in Urfa, Turkey. Electronic cards were distributed to families where each member receives 62 Turkish liras to be used to obtain basic foodstuffs, in addition to 120 Turkish liras per household with a child under 8 months.

03 | Savings Project

The savings and loans associations in the village are working on a fundamental principle to form a voluntary assembly of a group of people that choose itself and saves money by buying shares. The savings will be invested through a fund that members can borrow from and will be paid back with an additional charge for their services. This type of association in the village is considered as a type of credit and accumulated savings association. This is a term that describes a financial institution that is run by the community on a small scale. The main aim of setting up savings and loans associations in the village is to provide a means of savings and loans to a community that does not have access to official financial services and support. In addition, loans can be provided in the form of personal insurance with the help of a social fund that provides small grants that are necessary for member that are facing difficulties.

Reviving Communities

WATAN IN BRIEF

In 2012 WATAN began its journey as a framework for a group of institutes that were a result of extensive efforts of previous entities launched in 2006. WATAN works in many humanitarian and developmental fields through its specialized institutes. With over 5 million beneficiaries in Syria and its neighboring countries, WATAN continues to provide aid for Syria through relief, education, capacity building, and supporting civil society and livelihood projects to name but a few.

The integration between the WATAN institutes, staff members and its extensive network has enabled WATAN to provide more inclusive projects that meet the needs of Syrians. This extensive network and integration enables WATAN to reach most provinces in Syria.

Through your continuous support you are a key factor in helping WATAN reach people who are in need of help the most. Your support allows WATAN to create developmental projects that will pave the way forward for Syria's national progress.
